

LOOK AT YOU (Lebbink)

verse

So glad I made you laugh I Thought you remembered who you are You lit up for a second
But then your mind just wandered off

refrain

Ooooo, you've seen the world and travelled far
But does it really matter?
In the end you only are just what you are
A whole lot of memories won't make it better
And none of your memories will keep you young
All of the friends you shared them with
Are gone for so long

verse

Now what was I expecting?
I sort of hoped you'd say my name
Your eyes seem so receptive
But inside you slowly slip away

refrain

Ooooo, you've seen the world and travelled far
But, tell me, does it really matter?
In the end you only are just what you are
A whole lot of memories won't make it better
And none of your memories will keep you young
I remember that I looked up to you
You seemed so strong bridge

No use crying in the rain
This cup runneth over
Ain't nobody else to blame
But time...
Seeing you just sitting there
Fragile and bent over
The memory of who you were
Is completely mine, completely mine...

guitar solo

refrain

Ooooo, you see the world from very far
Can you hear me in there?
Each flame extinguishes, as will the brightest star
Nothing in this universe will last forever
Nothing in this universe knows good from wrong
And in another few trillion years
All will be gone

Look at you, why are you laughing?
